PROGRESSIVE LAWYERING, GLOBALIZATION AND MARKETS: Rethinking Ideology and Strategy

Clare Dalton
Editor

This unique book is a project of the Program on Human Rights and the Global Economy at Northeastern University School of Law. The inspiration for the essays collected here was a conference, Rethinking Ideology and Strategy: Progressive Lawyering, Globalization and Markets, held at the university in 2003.

This book seeks to sharpen analysis of some of the key issues and challenges we face as a national and global society; to generate fresh debate about those issues and challenges within the community of progressive legal thinkers, teachers and activists; and to expand the repertoire of strategies available to lawyers in the next decades to continue to fight for human opportunity and wellbeing.

“These essays collected here offer a multi-disciplinary and multi-generational approach to the challenges and opportunities presented by globalization and the spread of neo-liberal market ideology. The volume’s contributing authors represent three generations of progressive thinkers, teachers, policymakers and activists. Consistently, the contributors search for innovative understandings and blueprints for action.” — Preface, Clare Dalton

Clare Dalton, the general editor, is a Matthews Distinguished University Professor of Law at Northeastern University. She is the founder and former director of the Northeastern University’s Domestic Violence Institute. Her recent scholarship, focusing on the family court system and its response to domestic violence, includes Navigating Custody and Visitation Evaluations In Cases with Domestic Violence: A Judge’s Guide; and articles in the Juvenile and Family Court Journal and the Family and Conciliation Courts Review.
