Introduction to Commercial Law:
Cases, Problems and Materials
Sixth Edition

By Howard W. Foss

Now in its sixth edition, Howard Foss's Introduction to Commercial Law: Cases, Problems and Materials is an excellent introductory tool for the commercial law novice.

Part I of this work covers the Sale of Goods, including contract information, warranties, allocation of risks, remedies, and bulk transfers. Part II covers Commercial Paper, including holder in due course, contract liability, bank collections, and letters of credit. The final section, Part III, covers Secured Transactions, including an introduction to Article 9, perfection of security interests, priorities, and default.

This work also covers Articles 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, and 9 of the Uniform Commercial Code. Individual Code provisions are explored through the use of Problems, Statutory Questions, Statutory Notes, and court decisions.

The goal is for readers to become acquainted with issue-generating phrases within the statutory language of the Code. The most recent official versions of the above Articles are covered, except for Article 2 (2003) which has not yet been adopted by any states. Therefore, the book covers the pre-revision version of Article 2.

This guide on commercial law is ideal for students, researchers, professors, and librarians.
