International Journal of the Jurisprudence of the Family (IJJF)

A collection of scholarly papers from influential scholars and leading experts from around the world, including the House of Lords, University of Oxford, McGill University, and Trinity College Dublin!

About IJJF:

The International Journal of the Jurisprudence of the Family (IJJF) is a peer-reviewed academic journal which was established to foster scholarly works relating to the foundations of family life and family law. It aims to lead to an appreciation of the contributions made by families to the flourishing of individuals and societies. It also promotes a deeper understanding of the principles upon which families are based, and of the standards of law and governmental policies through which family life can be recognized and promoted.

The articles are written by leading world scholars and experts and reflect a wide variety of cultures, legal systems, religions, and schools of jurisprudence. The IJJF is affiliated with the International Academy for the Study of the Jurisprudence of the Family.

Hein's Current Content Subscription Model

What's included in the current content subscription model?

For the first time, Hein is pleased to introduce a current content subscription model that will provide online access to each new article or issue as soon as it becomes available. Online access also includes all historical volumes, making the entire archive fully searchable in a digital format.

What's available in the current content subscription model?

Current content is made up of all material published, including the most recent volume's articles or issue as each is completed.

How will I know when new articles are available in the current current subscription?

You can create an eTOC alert using a MyHein account in HeinOnline. After creating an eTOC alert for the title, you will receive an email notification alerting you when new content is added. The email will contain the table of contents for the issue and a link to the article(s).

Are you subscribed to HeinOnline's Law Journal Library?

If you subscribe to IJF in the current content subscription model and also subscribe to HeinOnline's Law Journal Library, the full text of the current articles will be fully integrated and accessible directly from within your Law Journal Library subscription. This means you can search across all articles of IJF in conjunction with all other law review articles in the Law Journal Library. You can browse to the title and access the full text of every volume and article from within the Law Journal Library. Lastly, you can quickly link to other law review articles that are cited in IJF if they are available in HeinOnline.

Not subscribed to HeinOnline's Law Journal Library?

If you do not already subscribe to the Law Journal Library, you will be provided a username and password to access IJF's current online subscription model. You will be able to search across the full text of all articles in IJF and print/download articles online. To access other cited material from HeinOnline's Law Journal Library, you will need a subscription. Contact marketing@wshein.com if you would like more information or to subscribe to HeinOnline's Law Journal Library.

1. Current content is made up of all material, including the most recent volume published. Once the most recent volume is complete, all previous volumes become part of the historical back file.

2. Volumes will be published annually and will contain approximately 10-12 articles.

3. You must be subscribed to HeinOnline's Law Journal Library in order to access the journal within the Law Journal Library.

4. HeinOnline indexes all recent content in the Law Journal Library, thus allowing you to browse or search across all volumes of the journal. You will be able to view the indexing for the most recent volume when browsing titles and in your search results; however, in order to access the full-text of the articles you must be subscribed to the Journal's current online subscription model.

5. You can create an eTOC alert for this title, but if you are not subscribed to the current online subscription model, you will not be able to access the full text of the new content.
